Broken Post Ranch Graham, TX / Young County

PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

Broken Post Ranch is 318 acres of rugged country tucked into the southwest corner of Young County. It is raw, functional land built for someone who values dirt under his boots and room to operate. Located just 19 miles west of Graham, the ranch offers a level of privacy and elbow room that is increasingly hard to find in North Texas.

A prominent plateau anchors the northeast corner, rising above the surrounding landscape and capturing expansive southern views. This high ground creates an ideal setting for a homesite, barn, or headquarters that truly commands the property. From this vantage point, you can see your cattle, your water, and your horizon.

Nearly half a mile of Fish Creek winds through the southwest portion of the ranch, lined with mature hardwoods that pull wildlife deep into the season. Six ponds are strategically scattered across the property, providing a dependable source of surface water for livestock and game. The combination of creek frontage, multiple tanks, mesquite flats, and scattered oak creates excellent habitat for whitetail deer, turkey, and feral hogs, while maintaining solid grazing capacity for cattle.

In a county where oil and gas infrastructure is common, Broken Post Ranch stands apart. Large tracts without active production are increasingly rare in Young County. This ranch offers clean ground with minimal surface clutter and no developed footprint to work around.

Utilities are available along FM 209 through Fort Belknap Water Supply Corporation and Fort Belknap Electric Cooperative, allowing for future improvements without sacrificing the ranch's rugged character.

Broken Post Ranch is straightforward Texas land—strong water, good grass, usable elevation, and genuine seclusion. It is ready to run cattle, hunt hard, or build something meant to last for generations.
