PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

This 40.427 +/- acre property in Fannin County, Texas is well-suited for hunters looking for quality habitat and strong wildlife potential in Northeast Texas! The land is covered in mature timber providing excellent bedding cover and natural travel corridors for deer and other wildlife. The thick cover creates the kind of environment that helps hold game on the property and makes it an ideal setup for strategically placed stands. Located approximately 5 +/- miles from Honey Grove, 20 +/- miles from Paris, Texas, and 75 +/- from the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex, this tract offers the opportunity to own a manageable-sized hunting property within easy driving distance of DFW. In addition to beautiful mature timber there is a creek that runs along the north boundary offering a dependable water source that naturally attracts wildlife, enhances the property's overall hunting appeal, and makes a great travel corridor. A trail system already runs through the property, making it easy to navigate by foot or ATV and providing convenient access to multiple stand locations. Whether you're checking cameras, filling feeders, or quietly slipping into a stand, the established trails make moving through the property simple and efficient. There is also an open pasture area that provides an excellent opportunity to establish food plots or feeder locations. This open space gives hunters the ability to actively manage the property and further improve its draw for wildlife. The property shows plenty of whitetail deer sign with well established game trails indicating consistent deer movement through the area. With the mix of timber, water, and open ground for food sources, this tract has the key ingredients many hunters look for in a manageable recreational property.
