

An aerial photograph of a landscape, possibly a construction site or a rural area. A red polygon is drawn on the map, highlighting a specific area. The polygon starts at a point on the left, goes right, then diagonally down-right, then diagonally up-right, then diagonally down-right, then diagonally up-right, then diagonally down-right, and finally back to the starting point. The area inside the polygon appears to be a mix of dirt, grass, and some structures. To the right of the polygon, there is a large, light-colored rectangular area, possibly a field or a large building. In the bottom right corner, there is a small, dark, rectangular object, possibly a building or a vehicle. The overall image is in grayscale.
