PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

47± Acres Near Robert S. Kerr Reservoir

Discover a rare opportunity to own 47± acres in Haskell County, Oklahoma, near Robert S. Kerr Reservoir and less than one mile from a public boat ramp. Whether you're an investor, developer, outdoor enthusiast, or someone seeking a private lake-area retreat, this versatile property offers exceptional potential in eastern Oklahoma.

With approximately 320± feet of county road frontage along a gravel road, the property provides convenient year-round access while preserving the privacy and tranquility of a rural setting. A major advantage is the existing subdivision layout, with 16 platted lots already in place, creating an excellent foundation for residential, vacation-home, or recreational development.

The property features rolling topography, creating an elevated build site with the potential for stunning views of Robert S. Kerr Reservoir. The varied terrain adds both character and development flexibility, allowing buyers to design homesites that maximize privacy, lake views, and natural surroundings. A seasonal creek runs through the southeast corner, enhancing the property's beauty while providing additional wildlife habitat.

Bordering U.S. Army Corps of Engineers land, this tract benefits from added privacy and direct proximity to protected acreage surrounding the lake. Outdoor recreation opportunities abound, with boating, fishing, hunting, wildlife viewing, and water sports all within minutes of the property.

The land is currently vacant and undeveloped, providing a blank canvas for your vision. Electric service is available nearby, and rural water is accessible in the area, with a water line extension required for future development.

Properties offering this combination of acreage, development potential, lake proximity, and recreational appeal are becoming increasingly difficult to find.
