Ridgeview West Tract

Chester, SC / Chester County

PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

The Ridgeview West Tract is an excellent recreational property in central Chester County. With thinned, mature pine plantations, nearly 100 acres of 7-year-old plantations and mature hardwood bottoms, the property offers an ideal balance of managed forest and preserved natural beauty. Seeley Creek crosses the northwestern portion of the property, with a smaller stream merging from the east. The confluence is framed by bottomlands and a conspicuous hardwood hill full of oaks. This beautiful creek bottom would make a great spot to sit during deer season or listen for an early morning spring gobbler. Topography ranges from gently rolling to moderately steep, offering ample opportunity for game patch enhancement and secluded sanctuaries.

The Ridgeview West Tract lies just 5 miles west of Chester. Rock Hill is a quick 25-mile drive, while Columbia and Charlotte are both just over an hour away.
