PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

Brower Ranch is a 254-acre recreational paradise nestled in the heart of Stephens County. It offers a remarkable blend of nature's natural beauty and excellent topography. At the entrance gate, this stunning topography elevates Brower Ranch's charm, showcasing 100 feet of elevation change and a picturesque park-like setting once used as a deer camp. This spot offers breathtaking views to the west, stretching for miles and showcasing the captivating landscape. This area has the potential to become an incredible location for building a future home or a delightful campsite.

While exploring the ranch, you'll discover over three miles of picturesque trails meandering through dense hardwoods, showcasing the changes in elevation and stunning rock formations. This creates a unique experience for all visitors. In the past, the family operated a small herd of cattle, but the primary enjoyment of the ranch was hunting. Over the years, the owners have been very selective in their harvest, showing a management-oriented approach. There are two main earth ponds on the property, with three older ponds that can be cleaned and restored. An opportunity exists to create another body of water off of the deep draw on the northern end of the ranch, which would enhance the natural environment. Several areas display the remnants of old food plots that can be revitalized with little effort. With access to water and electricity along FM 576, including a pending water meter application, the property offers endless possibilities for homesteading, camping, and hunting enthusiasts alike.
